SHOWING THE ONSAFTAINY OF A 'MAN.'

BY S. L. OF TENN.

ler what found a pece ove him big enuf tu feed a cockroach ought to be King ove the Sultan's harem for a thousand years fur his luck. They aint human, no human, no how. The mint at Philadelphia is thar Heaven, they think that God eats that dunes fur breakfast, hashes the leavins fur dinner, an' swaller a cent an a dried appli fur supper, sits on a stampin machine fur a throne, sleeps on a crib full ove haf dollars an measures men like money, by count. Thar haint wun ova em' got a soul but what end dance a jig in a kabagge seed an leave rume fur the fiddler, an perhaps a Yankee gall u two ove the usual stripe thrown in.

Well, Sicily she bought a tin box ove the sody fu' n'm, an' hid it away frum her folks, a sacra fu' far me.

I happened tu pass next day an ova courts stopped to enjoy a look at the tenor, an she wu' wery lovin to me; put wun arm round my neck, an' wther wun whar the "singin' goe" goes round a hoss tuck the 'turn' on me with her left foot, an' gin me a kiss. Says she "Sutty, love, I've got sumthin fur ye, a new seschun—an' I believed in it, fur I begin to feel it a realy. My toes felt like little minnows wane when ya ar at a big spring an the still house, ten miles off, and hit a rainin, an' yer flask only half full. She shows ammung winnen like a sunflower as compared tu dog foun' an smart weel an juisin. Oh, such a buzzin!—but thar aint no use of tryin to describe her. She needs adzactly fifteen inches ova greater clair ove the knot; stands sixteen hands an a haif, an weight one hundred an twenty-six, in her petticoats. A coldent crawl thru a whisky barril with both heel stov'nt, if it war alt stuly fur her, an' god foot hot at that. She never sat in an arm chear for her life, an' end lock the top hoope ove her waist. Her hair is as black as a crow's wing, midnite, or a niggar haulin' chaff when he'd ha' no breakfus. Tis as slick as this here bottil, an' ni' long as a horses tail. I've seen her jump over the top ove a split bottom cheer an never show her ankles, or kech her dress onto her. She end cry an lat at the same time, an either laved her all over hate you till yit fele like you'd been whipped with a pinzon vine an' bunch ove nettles when yer breeches are sturt warr bath in the wash tub. She kerrid devil enuf about her hair, an' end roll up a big tumbler in about the same number ove white wuns, inter tubb'ler, and put ni' onto a piat ove water on both ove em, an stirred em both up with a case nife, lookin as solemn as a cle jackson in a gow storm when the fodd'e give out. She wu' hit wile the wad' had no breakfus. Tis as slick as this here bottil, an' end wile the wad' will be.

Punctual to the moment my friend joined me, and we sailed forth, arm in arm, on our way to the pleasant mansion of the Mathews.

"Pray, who is this beauty, Pennell, for coquets are always beauties, I believe?" I replied as we sauntered slowly along.

"Her name is Mary Redington. She is a nice ova our hostess for the evening, with whom she has resided for some time past. Her mother is dead, and her father is a member of the American embassy to the Court of St. James. But here we are, and you must learn the rest frum her own lips. As I warrant ye will have a goodly share of her attentions to fight." Before there was time for further words we found ourselves in the reception room of our entertainers. After paying our compliments to our hostess, we passed on to the drawing room, where were assembled the beauty and fashion of the town.

"Wh' is that beautiful girl from whom Colcord and Hawes have been trying to win?" enquired I, as we sauntered slowly through the splendidly lighted rooms.

"None other than Mary Redington, Come, she has recognized us—I must introduce you."

Before I had time to reply the introduction was over, and I was promenading with the bells of the evening. Imperceptibly we glided into conversation, and I found that though a coquette she might be, she was a girl of no ordinary powers.

There was an artlessness in her words and manner, too, that tended to weaken the impression I had received from my friend, and rendered me desirous of continuing an acquaintance begun almost against my will.

"How lik'd you the party and Mary Redington?" enquired my friend, as we took our way to our room after the entertainment broke up.

The party was very brilliant, and speaks well for the ton ova society in your village," replied I.

"But what of Mary?"

"Why she is quite a passable girl," replied I carelessly.

"A passable girl, ha! ha! ha! and yet Charles Hamilton has been worshipping her all the evening. Why man, you are the most devoted admirer she has had for this many a micht. Your classmates and all the village beau's will be at swords' points with you if you take our belles by a space."

I was not aware that my attentions had been overpointed this evening. However, I will be guarded in future, so let us change the subject."

The unenviable reputation which Mary had gained of being a heartless coquette, prevented my seeking her society as often as I otherwise have done. The village gossips would account her almost numberless conquests, especially among the students of College. Many a fascinating sophomore had thought more of her than of his studies, and received for his trouble, a coquette's smile and his tutor's frown.

Mary was indeed beautiful and full of that graceful light heartedness, which more than beauty bewitches one, but which is often, alas! found united with heartless coquetry. For a time I was inclined to believe that what seemed the general opinion was true. But as I met her in society, and had opportunities of judging of her character, I could not but believe that a form so lovely enshrined a heart—a heart, too, susceptible of the purest and holiest passions that mortals know.

Gradually our slight acquaintances became intimacy, yet of the same general character with others of my friends, who ever found a welcome at her uncle's hospitable mansion. We rode, walked, and read together yet she did the same with others.

One week my attentions seemed to claim the preference, the next, another. But as I met her in society, and had opportunities of judging of her character, which convinced me that she had yet to love, and that when she did it would be a fervor of which few are capable.

Thus passed the last year of my college life. The evening previous to my departure from H——, I visited Mary. We strolled upon the banks of the river, where we had spent many an hour in ill wandering during the past year. For once, her usual vivacity had deserted her, and our walk, on this eve, was unlike the many which had preceded it almost a silent one.

Look on the cold, the gay, the proud,
And is their one among them free?"

"What! still at your books? Why is it said a classmate of mine as he abruptly entered my room ova day soon, after I had become a member of College."

"Perhaps it is, but I do not intend going.
Not going! Why the whole class will be there."

"In that case there will be enough without me, besides you, I am entirely stranger, and do not care much about going to society while I remain here."

"No—not that is just the reason for your joining us to-night. All the pretty girls are here to-night."

"Not much of an inducement that, a few great ideas of falling in love just yet."

"Nor have any of us, but a little flirtation now and then is an excellent remedy for the blues. We have just the subject for that—one of the greatest coquettes in the world."

We are authorized to announce Capt. WILLIAM A. MULLEN as a candidate for the office of Superior Court Clerk of Pasquotank County.

We are authorized to announce WILSON G. LAMM, Esq., as a candidate for the office of Superior Court Clerk, for Pasquotank County.

We are authorized to announce J. R. ETHERIDGE, Esq., as a candidate for Superior Court Clerk for the county of Pasquotank.

PERQUIMANS COUNTY.

We are authorized to announce Josiah R. Wood, Esq., as a candidate for the office of County Court Clerk of Perquimans county.

We are authorized to announce Jas. L. Ball, Esq., as a candidate for the office of Superior Court Clerk of Perquimans.

APPOINTMENTS.

Dr SHAW and Mr. SMITH, candidates for Congress in this District, will address the people at the following places and times:

Halifax, Wednesday, July 15th.
Greenwood, Friday, " 17th.
Hamilton, Monday, " 20th.
Williamston, Wednesday, " 22nd.
Jamesville, Friday, " 24th.
Plymouth, Saturday, " 25th.
Columbia, Monday, " 27th.
Cool Spring, Wednesday, " 29th.
Germanton, Thursday, " 30th.

CAMPAGN PIONEER.

An instance of the passion strong in death, thus related by the Peoria (Illinoian) News:

Old Cook was known as a miser, and had amassed a large fortune. On his death bed, when the last gasp was approaching, a tallow candle was burning on the stand, and a flickering flame in the fire place. He watched the candle and then the fire. Suddenly he called his son—

"Woodbury, come here." The boy approached the bed-side, when the old man whispered out—

"Woodbury, blow out that candle—allow's nose as dear as butter."

A LESSON FOR THE GIRLS.—My pretty little dears: You are no more fit for matrimony than a pugilist is to look after four-teeth chickens. The truth is my dear girls you want generally speaking, much more liberty and less bustle. I like the buxom, bright eyed, rosy cheeked, full breasted, bounding lass, who can darn stockings, make her own frocks, mend trousers, command a regiment of pots and kettle, milk the cows, feed the pigs, chop the wood, and shoot a wild duck as well as the Duchess of Marlborough or the Queen of Spain—and be a lady within a drawing room.

A FUNNY STORY IS told of a man who stole a five dollar bill out of Indiana. In order to lessen the crime, his counsel endeavored to prove that the note was not worth five dollars, it being at a discount. The prosecutor said he knew the prisoner was the meanest man in the State, but he did not think he was all fired meat as not to be willing to steal Indiana money at par.

When first the marriage knot was tied,

Between my wife and me;

My age exceeded hers as much,

As three times does three,

But when we man and wife had been

For ten and half ten years,

Her age approached as near to mine

As eight is to sixteen.

Question—How old were they when they were married?

A TREMENDOUS TITLE.

We have received a newspaper from Massachusetts, somewhat larger than a man's hand, entitled "The Battle Axe of Truth and Sledge Hammer of Liberty." The name of the paper, like the head of a dwarf, is about as big as the body. It is a terrible name, and people no doubt will take care in Massachusetts how they make war upon "Truth" and interfere with "Liberty."

WHICH IS RIGHT?—The Louisville Journal says "the American party was never stronger, purer or more harmonious than at present"; but the Richmond Whig says "it would be like dishonesty for any one now to contend that there is such a thing as the American party in existence."

WOULD NOT ANSWER.

Our Murfreesboro correspondent says, that Dr. Shaw desired to know of Mr. Smith, if elected to Congress, would he—Mr. Smith—a democrat for speaker, in the event that the position of parties was similar to that of the last Congress or assist in re-enacting the scenes of the last House of Representatives?

Mr. Smith replied by eulogizing the Hon. H. M. Fuller, and saying that he would vote for a "good man." There are two points in this unequalled answer deserving notice. The eulogy and praise bestowed upon the Hon. H. M. Fuller leaves us to infer that Mr. Smith regards him as "a good man" and such a one as would receive his vote if elected. Now who is this Mr. Fuller? A Pennsylvania Know Nothing that ran in opposition to the principles of the Kansas-Nebraska bill, defeating the Hon. H. B. Wright, a States Rights, National Democrat, who spoke and voted for the Kansas-Nebraska bill, and was beaten upon that issue by Mr. Fuller. Mr. Fuller was selected by Southern Know Nothings as their candidate for speaker, and when asked his views upon the repeal of the Missouri restriction said that if it could be restored, he would vote for it, but as it could not, why he—generous man—opposed its agitation. If it—the Missouri restriction—could be restored, and the odious measure again be made available against the South, Mr. Fuller would have urged its restoration, but as that was impossible the House was then constituted, Mr. Fuller was opposed to any action upon the subject. Can the South ever repay such noble and patriotic devotion to her rights? This was Mr. Fuller's declaration upon the floor of Congress, and cannot be gainsayed or denied. Such is the man that found a eulogist in Mr. Smith. But this is not all. It will not be forgotten that six weeks was consumed in an attempt to elect a speaker. Fuller was the nominee of the thirty five Southern Know Nothings then in Congress, and they cast their votes for him through one hundred and thirty nine consecutive ballots. Finding it impossible to elect Fuller they determined to vote for Gov. Aiken of South Carolina. One would have thought that gratitude if nothing else would have urged Fuller to have voted with those who had stood so faithfully by him; but did he do it? No! After his Southern friends had adhered to him with a firmness and constancy that for six weeks prevented the election of a speaker, he then deserted them when the trial came between the Black Republicans and the union of Democrats and Know Nothings then in Congress, and by refusing to vote, assisted the election of the vile Union sliding Banks. This is the man that finds a eulogist in Mr. Smith. Such is the man we infer that Mr. Smith regards as a good man, and for whom he would be willing to vote.

The answer given to the question argues thus: should a similar contingency occur in the organization of the House—should Mr. Smith be so fortunate as to be elected—he would, rather than vote for a Democrat, risk by a like course of conduct, the selection of another Black Republican to the Speakership. Is there any other inference to be deduced from his answer? Why not have stated plainly, that his party proclivities were not of that stern, unyielding character as to lead him to jeopardize an interest so important, and to incur a danger of which, the proceedings of the last House should be a fearful warning. But he does not give that clear and explicit answer that the people had a right to expect. He will vote for a "good man," and that is all that can be got from him. We are disposed to believe, that if he intends to hold up H. M. Fuller as his model of "a good man," and to leave us to infer that such a man would command his vote, the people of the first Congressional District, will delegate some other to represent them in the thirty-fifth Congress.

MR. FULLER MAY BE A VERY GOOD PENNSYLVANIA KNOW NOTHING, but we imagine that he would not suit this latitude, and when Mr. Smith becomes his eulogist and makes him the subject of an eloquent panegyric, Fuller's antecedents may force his hearers to ask strange questions.

TESTIMONIAL.

The citizens of E. City, in appreciation of the obliging, polite, gentlemanly and officer-like conduct of the commander of the Steamer Curlew—Capt. T. I. Burbage—which has invariably characterized him since being in command of the Curlew, have presented him with a handsome gold ring.

This tribute to the worth of a gallant and meritorious officer is alike creditable to those making the present and to the recipient, as showing the just estimate of valuable services upon one part and a right conception of duty upon the other.

We are requested by Capt. Burbage to present to the citizens of E. City, his grateful acknowledgments for this beautiful testimonial; and to assure them that nothing shall be wanting upon his part to render their future intercourse pleasant and agreeable, and that whilst in command of the Curlew, his constant exertion shall be to render her a favorite with the public.

PROFITABLE FARMING.—The Bedford County (Va.) Democrat publishes an account of Mr. Cofer's crop of tobacco, amounting in the aggregate to over $3,000. The farm on which the crop was raised was purchased by Mr. Cofer at $2,000, thus paying for the land with three sheaves for the "Old Dominion." Senator M. made a speech of thanks, which was very kindly received.

EXCURSION TO CROATAN:

Capt. Burbage proposes to give another excursion to Croatan on Wednesday next. The Curlew to leave at 5 o'clock, P. M., and return the same evening. The band from Nag's Head is engaged for the trip. Fare only 50 cts. We predict—weather permitting—a pleasant excursion to all that arouses the Curlew.

PLEASANT RECEPTION.—Ex President Pierce and Senator Mason, of Virginia, arrived Dover, N. H., the 23d ult. The ex President introduced the Senator to a body of persons who had assembled at the hotel, and the introduction was responded to by three cheers for the "Old Dominion." Senator M. made a speech of thanks, which was very kindly received.

WHY DR. SHAW SHOULD BE ELECTED.

There are several reasons why the nomination of the Democratic party should receive the votes of the people of the district over his Whig-American competitor, W. N. H. Smith Esq., and we will sum up a few of them as follows:

Because he is a sound, national conservative Democrat, a member of the only party that can boast being truly national, and the only party upon which the Southern people can safely rely to quiet this sectional agitation, and save the Union.

Because he is uncompromisingly opposed to the dangerous, reckless, ruinous, and unconstitutional project of distribution, a project fraught with evils of the first magnitude both to the State and federal governments, as well as effecting vitally the individual interest of every man in the nation.

Because of his bold, fearless, and independent course whilst a member of the 33rd Congress, his faithful guardianship of the rights of his constituents, his unwavering fidelity in the discharge of duties, and his strict adherence to the cardinal principles of the party which elected him. His opponents do not—that we are aware of—take any exception to his votes whilst a member of that body.

Because of his uniform attention to all private business intrusted to his care, whether in his public or private capacity. His kindness in subjecting himself to every inconvenience in promptly and punctually attending to all matters strictly of a private nature when requested to do so by friend or foe, political—was noted in terms of commendation by those who had labored indefatigably to defeat him. He received even from them the well earned reputation of a faithful representative.

For these and many other, reasons that we might mention, we submit that Dr. Shaw has claims upon the District that will, we believe secure his election.

AGRICULTURAL WAREHOUSE.

A stroll through the extensive Machine shop and Agricultural-warehouse of our enterprising townsmen, Mr. W. H. Clark, rather opened our eyes to the magnificent scale upon which this establishment is conducted. We knew that Mr. Clark was largely engaged in the manufacture of every species of farming implement and machinery, but no idea of the extent of his operations suggested itself to our mind until our visit. The large and commodious addition which he has recently made to his establishment is completely filled with workmen, machines, in the course of building or those ready—we were about to say for the market, but awaiting delivery; we noticed with pleasure the many useful and substantial evidences of the handicraft and enterprise of Mr. Clark—such as when threshers, from those of the largest to the smallest capacity, fans, corn shellers, straw cutters, and every variety of machine that facilitates the operations of the agricultural community.

We are glad to know that the enterprise, skill and industry of Mr. Clark receive the proper estimate, not only from this, but from a large region of surrounding country, for, as we understand, his orders for machines this season are larger than for any previous year. Strangers would do well to give this manufactory an examination.

NAG'S HEAD.

The improvements at this popular watering place being nearly complete, its energetic proprietor has thrown it open for the season, and visitors are hastening to avail themselves of its many rare advantages. The prospect is that a profitable season will reward Dr. Savage for the labor and expense incurred in the additions and improvements made to the Hotel, and for his unstinted expenditure in preparing for this pleasure and accommodation of his guests. He has procured the services of Mr. Gresham—to merit of the Weldon Hotel—a gentleman of some reputation in catering for the public, and one well known to the travelling community. A good landlord to Nag's Head must render it popular. So mote it be.

REV. DR. MITCHELL OF CHAPEL HILL.

About two weeks ago this gentleman arrived here on his way to Black Mountains, with a view of making further explorations of that region of country. It is with pain that we have to announce his death. He left the Mountain House on this side of the Mountains with the intention of crossing them to Caney River, without a guide. It was ascertained that he had never reached Caney River settlement, and supposing that he was lost numbers of persons started in search of him; his body was found in the Cat-tail fork of Caney River on yesterday about 3 o'clock. It seems that he was walking on the edge of a precipice when his feet slipped, he caught by a branch of laurel but it broke and he fell into a long unending chasm. He fell 40 feet. Of him it is needless to say anything his reputation is the reputation of University and the State. To his exertions the prosperity of the former is as much due as any other man. He died martyr to science and scientific knowledge.

GOOD NEWS.—Our information from the 1st and 6th Congressional Districts is to the most cheering character. Messrs. Shaw and Scales are evidently on the tide of success. Their powerful efforts are telling on the receding and disorganized forces of the opposition. Let every Democrat and Anti-Know Nothing but work, and the DAY WILL BE OURS.

We must give a close vote, but incessant effort and a full vote will ensure us the victory.

REMEMBER, that Free Suffrage is to be voted on the same day that members of Congress will be elected—Thursday, the 6th day of August. Do not forget the day—do not forget Free Suffrage—do not forget the Democratic candidates for Congress in the first, second, third, fourth, fifth, sixth, seventh, and eighth Districts. Standard.

POSTRONDO.—A constituent of the Petersburg Express, writing from Goldsboro, N. C., says a few days since a young printer, named Dofford of Portsmouth, Va., made arrangements to run off with a daughter of Deacon Nelson, of Goldsboro. The trip was postponed, however, in consequence of the "engaged patient" being seen sitting before his door with a heavily loaded musket.

NOTICE.

ON SATURDAY THE 23d of July, will be offered for sale at the house of C. H., one sixth part of the estate of James Cowell. Said estate consists of 140 acres, in condition varying, with some houses, barns, etc., and a quantity of personal property. Terms made known.

July 7—1857. W. H. COVELL.

successful and speedy arrangement with Mr. Washington. His present conditions of sale are, you perceive, the same as those given to Gov. Johnson nearly two years ago. While we can regret that Mr.

Washington feels that neither consistency nor his personal opinions will permit him to act with any party but Virginia, we appreciate his having consented, solely to

"gratify others and carry out a desirable

"public measure," to place the estate once more at the disposal of Virginia. Her position to the Ladies of the Mount Vernon

Association remains materially the same, as no stipulations are made as to the source of funds used, &c., to interfere with it.

We have asked and obtained the privilege, not only of presenting the "purchase fund" for Mount Vernon, in order to tender

the "National tribute of love and reverence to him whose memory should ever live in the hearts of his indebted countrymen

but, also of a sufficient share in its custo-manship to enable present and future generation to adorn it as far as a grateful national spirit of the spirit of this island nation will permit.

As an illustration of the spirit of this barangue take the following allusion:

"When we are lifting our marble martyrs to his niche on Bunker Hill, the slave-holder who forced the fugitive slave bill down our throats is introduced with complimentary flunkeyism, in the very shadow of the awful place, and we listened to his haughty-toned commonplace with respectful patience."

NOTICE.

MR. BURGESS,
July 14, 1857—4s.

THE RICHMOND DISPATCH,
DAILY, SEMI-WEEKLY AND WEEKLY.
THE urgent solicitations of a number of friends have induced me to publish a SEMI-WEEKLY DISPATCH.

It will appear about the 3d July next, will be printed with new type, will contain twenty-eight columns of reading matter, and in size and proportions will resemble the weekly Dispatch. The subscription will be only Two Dollars per annum in Advance.—
It will contain all the news of the day—Political, Domestic, Foreign, Miscellaneous and Commercial—together with Editorials and entertaining Literature. Especial attention will be paid to the markets, which will be regularly and accurately reported.
It will be indeed a Newspaper in the most comprehensive sense; presenting intelligible narratives of everything that transpires, and communicating promptly and succinctly all kinds of information appropriate to the Newspaper.

There are only semi-weekly mails in many parts of the State, and this semi-weekly edition of the Dispatch meets the wants of the people supplied by those mails.

Ever branch of the paper is entrusted to capable gentlemen, and the Daily and weekly Dispatch are examples of the enterprise with which it will be sustained.

Those who want the Semi-Weekly Dispatch will please send in their orders at once, so that their subscriptions may begin with the first number. Address the undersigned.

Advertisements will be inserted at the usual rates; and as the Semi-Weekly edition will no doubt be widely circulated, it will be an advantageous medium for communicating with the public.

Both the Daily and the Weekly, as well as the Semi-Weekly Dispatch will soon be greatly improved, and the three papers will be sent to subscribers at the following
